Summer School To Award Scholarships

First Year Students Outside Quebec Eligible

Professor du Roure, director of the French summer school has announced that this year two scholarships will be awarded. These scholarships will be given to one boy and one girl. Although the school is open to everyone, graduates and undergraduates, nevertheless the scholarships will only be awarded to first year students.

Also the province of Quebec is exempted as most Quebec students already have a knowledge of French which cannot be acquired in the other provinces. These prizes will not be awarded on a basis of scholastic ability, but on the basis of the most apparent improvement in French.

The summer school is especially recommended for students having some difficulty in speaking and understanding French. As concerns the fees, the department has announced that these will be at the rate of $150 for the session. This includes tuition, room and board. McGill undergraduates, however, will be entitled to a reduction of 10 per cent from the regular fee.

He continued on to Toronto and arrived there at 5.15. Six hours later he once more entered this city, where he arrived at 7.45 this morning.

Fingerprints Prove Safe Identification

Errors Never Made When Fingerprints Used To Identify Criminals

VALUE STRESSED

Professor S. E. Whitnall Addresses Mechanics Institute

Fingerprints prove an extremely accurate means of positive identification according to Professor S. E. Whitnall of the Medical Department, in delivering an illustrated lecture at the Mechanics Institute last night on "Identification and Fingerprints."

So accurate has identification by means of fingerprints proved that Scotland Yard has not made one error in all of the 250,000 identifications made. In fact Professor Whitnall maintained, no two prints have ever been found to be the same, and the chances of error are only one in 2000 million million.

Cameras Do Lie

"Though it is the common belief that cameras never lie the speaker recounted an incident in which they certainly appeared to. He stated that Scotland Yard was seeking a criminal who had apparently fled to France. They forwarded six pictures of the wanted man to the Paris police. Several days later Scotland Yard received word from Paris that five of the culprits had already been arrested and that they were hot on the trail of the sixth.

The necessity of having some means of positive identification became apparent in the old days when fake claimants were continually causing considerable trouble all over Europe and

Plumbers Complete Annual Ball Plans

Music By Billy Bissett Will Be Broadcast From Ballroom

Plans for the Plumbers' Ball, which will be held next Tuesday in the Ballroom of the Windsor Hotel, are practically completed, according to an announcement made last night. The main attraction of the evening will be Billy Bissett and his orchestra, who will broadcast their music on the evening of the dance. This is the first time that such a novel feature has been incorporated in any McGill dance.

Tickets are now on sale at $5 a couple and may be obtained by anyone from the janitor of the Engineering Building. The committee has also made arrangements so that dressing-rooms will be available at a special rate of $3. The list of patrons, and patronesses has not been submitted as yet, but will be given out in the near future.

Originality in decorations and favours is assured, as considerable work has been done on these items. The exact nature of the results, however, is not available to the general public at present.

Hockey Play-Off Tickets

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Athletic Board, held on February 21, 1933, it was decided to make a special rate to students for the McGill Senior Group play-off game on March 3 of 25 cents plus a student coupon. In order to get this rate it will be necessary to purchase tickets at the Athletic Office before noon on March 3. It is regretted by the Executive Committee that admission cannot be made free, but the financial situation of the Athletic Board will not permit of this concession.

Winners Announced In Student's Songs And March Contest

Mr. W. B. Ross And Bob Freeman Submit Best Marches and Songs

JUDGING DIFFICULT

Prize-Winning Compositions To Be Used By Band Next Year

After a lengthy deliberation as to the best song and the best march handed in to the Song Competition, the Committee of the Students Council and the Graduates Society, consisting of Mr. G. B. Glasco, Secretary of the Graduates Society, and Bob Shaw, President of the Musical Association, yesterday announced the results. The Committee reports that all the songs submitted in this Song Competition are of a very high quality, making the selection of the best song and march a most difficult task.

However, the judges, Dean Douglas Clarke, Harry Norris and Bob Shaw have come to a decision, granting the first prize for the best march to Mr. W. Bruce Ross, who was the producer of the Red and White Revue for two years and who is now doing Post-graduate work in Physics. Mr. Ross' march is built around a march he composed for the Red and White Revue two years ago.

Freeman Wins Prize

The first prize for the student song was awarded to Bob Freeman, a student in the second year Medicine and well-known in musical circles. Freeman played the role of Jack Point in the Choral and Operatic Society production "The Yeoman of the Guard."

Raymond Caron, past President of the Musical Association, Mr. Irving Cooper, Dr. Charles O'Neill, bandmaster of the Quebec Citadel Band,

Romeo Jobin, of Paris Opera, At Tudor Hall

A concert of some national interest will take place in Tudor Hall on Saturday afternoon at 3.00 o'clock, when Romeo Jobin, Canadian Tenor of the Paris Opera will appear in a song recital. Mr. Jobin is a distinguished figure in international music circles and is said to have contributed much to the propagation of Canadian art in Europe.

Most of Mr. Jobin's important performances were given in Paris, where he made his debut in 1930, at the theatre des Champs-Elysees, in Franz Liszt's Christus. He was immediately after engaged by the Paris Opera with which he played a prominent part, appearing in leading roles with Huberty, Villabella, Madame Heldy, Yvonne Gall, and others. He gained considerable recognition in his creation of new roles in works by Laparra and Magnard. This concert will be the last in this popular-priced series for the current season.

Strathcona Hall Will Be Scene Of Informal

Among various other unemployment relief projects, the Theological students are holding a dance tonight in Strathcona Hall. Refreshments will be served at about twelve-thirty o'clock, then dancing will continue again for some time.

Dr. R. Scott and Professor Naylor have kindly consented to be patrons at tonight's dance.

All plans have been completed, with nothing left undone to make for success this latest attempt of the committee in charge to aid unemployed young men, who, for some months past have been supported by the student body.

There has been a good sale of tickets which may be procured at Strathcona or the Arts Building. The music starts at 8.45 and it is hoped that as many students as possible will attend, as the aim of the dance is a worthy and deserving one.

People's Forum To Hear Parliamentarian

Miss Agnes Macphail To Lecture This Sunday

Agnes Macphail, M.P., the first and only woman to be elected to the Canadian Federal Parliament, has chosen "Where Do We Go From Here?" as the topic of the address she will deliver at the regular weekly meeting of the People's Forum on Sunday evening, February 26.

Miss Macphail is a personality of dynamic attributes, motivated by the highest principles of uncompromising integrity. For her there is but one aspect to every issue—the moral aspect—and there is nothing to indicate that she has ever deviated in the least from a scrupulous constancy to that principle.

In these times when public affairs are so completely dominated by unbridled national, group and private interest, it is encouraging to find that the womanhood of the country is represented by one whose every utterance proclaims her independence, her sincerity and her nobility of purpose.

Education For Commerce

The speaker on tonight's Graduate Broadcast over CKAC will be R. R. Thompson. His address, which will be delivered at 10.30, will be on "University Education For Commerce."

Debaters Consider Democracy's Failure

J. Macleish And P. Vineberg Uphold McGill's Case

By pointing out that political parties often work for themselves first and the people afterwards John Shepherd and Philip Stole defeated the resolution that "Party Government is a Useful System" in the Arts '35 debate held yesterday.

Party government was originally a natural growth but it has now outlived its usefulness the negative speakers claimed. In attempting to uphold the resolution the affirmative speakers, Leo Simkover and Lawrence Lewis, pointed out that party government was popular government and therefore was in the best interests of the people.

Mussolini Good. In refuting this argument John Shepherd pointed out that Mussolini has exerted a beneficial control over Italy without party government. Russia too seemed to be doing well without this system he pointed out.

The negative side was able, however, to break down this argument by citing examples of universal practices and customs which were admittedly not in the common good. The tremendous expense of elections in both time and money was also pointed out as being a serious defect in party governments.

Arnold L. Johnson judged the debate while W. Hulbig acted as chairman.

Stars Evolve From Nebulae To Dwarfs

Nebulae Are Masses of Gas Which Arc About To Condense

GASES CONDENSE

Dr. Douglas Lectures To Unemployed In Strathcona Hall

"The evolution of the stars, from the primeval nebulae to the dwarfs, is in two stages an upward, and a downward progression," said Dr. A. V. Douglas, Lecturer in Astrophysics, in a lecture to the unemployed yesterday afternoon in Strathcona Hall. "The nebulae themselves are vast masses of tumulous gases, millions of times the size of the solar system. Each is like a Throne of chaos, and his dark pavilion spread wide on the wasteful deep."

Due to gravity, these gases condense, and the heat given out in condensation raises its temperature until it emits a red light. This is the first stage in the life of the star. Gradually as its size decreases it becomes hotter and hotter, giving off light of an orange, then a white, and lastly a blue colour. It has now reached its peak and begins to decline. It is still condensing, but its heat now is decreasing, but now in the reverse direction. It becomes dimmer and dimmer, until it stops giving out light. Now nothing is left but a burned-out cinder—a dwarf.

Dwarfs Peculiar

These dwarfs are peculiar. For example

Position Of Woman In Professions Due To Man's Courtesy

Woman's Place Is At Home Attending To Children, States Speaker

WOMEN AMBITIOUS

Delta Sigma Defeats United Theologs At Divinity Hall

Women have succeeded in the professions only because men have been too courteous to accord to them the brutal treatment which they accord to their fellow-men. This was the point of view of the Delta Sigma debaters, in the debate between the Delta Sigma Society, and the United Theological College, held last night in Divinity Hall. "That Woman Has Justified Her place in The Professions," was the resolution under discussion. United Theological supported the affirmative, while the resolution was attacked by Delta Sigma, who were victorious.

H. E. Parsons, for the Theological College, in opening for the Affirmative claimed that woman's place is not static, but that it changes as each individual enters any given profession, and adds to, or detracts from, that particular profession. The word "her" signifies that she has an established position, and therefore, ipso facto, it justifies itself. In order to fit themselves for a profession, women can undertake a long training. They have a capacity for service, and are less apt to be swayed by mere considerations for profit. In view of the fact that they can fulfil these requirements for a successful career, their position is justified. Woman's entry into the professions is but one part of that inevitable thread of human progress.

Negative Case

Marjorie Gowans, in opening the negative case, stated that women took the attitude of being able to do what men could do, and man, because he was courteous, and tolerant, would not stop her. Throughout the ages,

Our Visitor

THE visit of Lord Bessborough to McGill University is not a mere gesture, not the mere fulfillment of a conventional arrangement. Rather it is a symbol of the interest and trust that Canada as a whole places in our operations, and a manifestation of vice-regal regard of the educational significance of McGill.

His visit to McGill is of considerable importance. It is the visit of one concerned in the welfare of the Canadian nation, the visit of one who realizes the contributions that a great university can make to the culture and wealth of Canada. Our students would do well to see the significance of his presence here, and help extend to the royal visitor the welcome that his endeavors deserve.

A Real McGill Song

AT last McGill has a song! Announcement was made last night that a song and a march have been added to the list of McGill songs. This is the culmination of several months' work by the committee in charge, by the judges, and by those who were interested enough to contribute their songs. Thus the Band will now have a really original McGill song and march in their repertoire.

But the choice of these two numbers as official McGill songs will not ensure their success. It is up to the student body as a whole to take them up, to learn the words, to co-operate with the committee in their efforts to teach the tunes. There has been much agitation in the past for a march tune that would be a real McGill tune, and not an old tune with the words changed. Now that we have one, it is up to everyone to make it a success.

Congratulations are due the successful writers, and our appreciation is extended to all those who contributed their efforts, as well as to the committee in charge, for the success of the contest.

Freedom and Flux

A UNIVERSITY campus is a melting pot of new ideas and new standards. College life is so complex that at times we are overwhelmed by the diversity and multiplicity of "What's On". Sociologically speaking, a University is an area of high mobility where society is constantly in a state of flux. That is simply that the whole flow of ideas and the interaction of knowledge, coupled with the transient nature of students combine to make a socially unsettled group.

In such a group, the impact of ever-changing ideas upon the individual who is in a high pitch of activity tends to produce a state of personal disorganization and instability of character. This is a sociological fact which must be faced by college students, and which certainly merits careful consideration by all who are desirous of making their University training count. Students who are not living at home while attending college are especially open to the effects of these militant forces. The truth of this is clearly seen when it is remembered that the family is one of the greatest factors of social control. Consequently the break from the familiar fireside combined with the experience of "this freedom" has a disorganizing effect upon even the most mature.

College days are times of great internal conflict within the individual, for they are periods of the moulding or shaping of one's personality. They are times, too, when students undergo a serious disintegration of traditions and when they find themselves in contact with those interested in "the latest" and "the newest". Thus there is the tendency among college men and women to overemphasize what is novel just because it is novel, and to forget or ignore what is old and tried. Traditions are abandoned readily and new ideas stacked up and loosely retained.

The greatest test of the student throughout his undergraduate days is whether he possesses a true sense of values — his ability to judge the real worth of what he comes in contact with. And this is as true of the Senior as of the Freshman.

-OF CABBAGES AND KINGS

SOME OF THE GIRLS

NOTHING to do on those lonely evenings, boys? Kinda lonesome, ain'tcha? Well, your unappreciated columnist is going to do you a favor. To wit, you will hereupon find a list of all the — just think of it! nearly all of the — that is, a list of a good many of the chorus girls of the Revue. Boy-oh-boy! And telephone numbers to boot. And the Christian names of the girls to boot. In fact, a score of girls whom you may boot in your — or their — spare time.

There's Rita, HA. 4934. And Shirley, EL. 4809. Isabel (Amy to you) FI. 6843. Margy (the N.D.G. one) DE. 3270. Janet DE. 1363. Norma, WE. 2319. Betty, WE. 8970. Audrey, WA. 1519. Connie, WA. 3158. Beryl, WA. 4915. Wilda, EL. 2452. Anna, CA. 5541. Doris, PL. 7455. Patricia EL. 5582. Phyllis, EL. 5114. Nora, PL. 5358? Phyllis (the other one) WA. 2000. Betty, WA. 4915. Helen, EL. 6628. Ellen and Patience, MA. 2818.

All those Elwood and Walnut and Dexter numbers sound pretty sinister. The Plateau numbers are being kept for the use of the officials of the revue. Help yourself, but a note of warning: Several of the above are freshettes. The joke's on you if you pull them out of the bag.

MORE PUBLICITY

AND speaking about the Revue chorus, it seems that there's a great demand for chewing gum at the Union Tuck Shop these days. The demand is all the greater because the Tuck Shop doesn't keep it. In fact all the best brands of chewing gum are not kept by the Tuck Shop. The chorines still keep demanding it — not to chew of course, because they come from the west end. They want it to hold their cellophane trousers up with.

The Tuck Shop does not keep chewing gum. Now I have told you this you will want to see the Revue. Well, the Publicity Manager tells me that any day now he intends to break the news that the Revue starts week after next. He has to finish the poetry and riddle contests first. And there will be no Saturday matinee, says Dame Rumour (Revue chaperone) because Peter Pan will be playing. The same thing happened last year, but they compromised and put Peter Pan in the Revue.

Unfortunately the Producer began a jig-saw puzzle a week ago, and although the Musical Director, The Stage Manager, and The Director of Skills, (all in capital letters) having been working day and night, they doubt if they will be able to get the thing put together in time. If not, the Producer will have to keep at it anyway and they will get someone else to look after the big spotlight.

OUR MUSIC

THE Music Critic of this journal having discarded the titular distinctions of Altheiff and Musicus, now calls himself Panphilus. We use the phrase "calls himself" advisedly, because the names that other people call him show infinitely more imagination and virility. Panphilus as we understand it means "Lover of all" or else "He who pans Love". But it doesn't matter. This is merely an introductory paragraph to how Panphilus would write up a gathering of The Badminton Club.

"A certain indistinct inevitability engrossed the smoothness of the players, and the tempo of the services produced an intense and arabesque effect that somehow seemed to lack a certain vigor. The audience was very stupid. The pizzicato fillings around the edge of the shuttles led to a haunting and visible culmination, but the audience was very stupid."

"A certain indefinable restraint marked the serving of the refreshments, and one can not but feel that one could not but remark that the committees had evinced a rather unwise indiscretion in not appreciating fully the haunting beauty of salmon sandwiches. But the audience was oh so very stupid. The charm and elegant feeling was fully noticed by me, but the rest of the audience was very stupid."

BALLS AND SUCH

SOMETHING should be done about the overlapping of campus social events. Yes, they should overlap more than they do, says you? Well something should be done about it. Here was the Black Sheep Ball all arranged for the 28th, of February and the Plumbers came along and held theirs on the same night. A deputation from the Black Sheep has decided to demand that the Students' Council capouse their cause, — as soon as the Council has finished supporting the Alarm Clock. There is so much ill-feeling among the various protagonists of the Black Sheep that their party is promised to be a glaring success.

The International Dance is fast losing its international flavor, now that the English Literature Society and the Spanish Club have disowned it. It's a remarkable thing that last year, when the German Club held a German Dance, they held it in a Chinese Cafe. Now they hold an international dance in the Teutonia Club. They say the only international aspect about it will be a lot of foreign matter in the soup.

Hell, why not send a deputation from the late Macabean Circle to the Newman Club Dance, and have the real thing?

THEOLOGS AND OTHERS

THEOLOGS are always nice people to write about because theologists naturally like expressing their opinions and now there are so many theologists that they can't all give sermons every week so whenever I mention them they write letters to the Daily about it and of course they don't like this column because being preachers they like long verbose sentences and I have a terse concise style. Theologs have climbed into prominence just lately because last night they debated against a team of coeds. The Daily called it a "novel departure." "Departure" is the right word to use when talking about an argument with a woman.

But its all very strange. A pastor is not supposed to argue with the alleged opposite sex. They are supposed to sit down docilely, take furtive bites out of the currant bun, and say "yes", "how terrible", and "yes, its a lovely baby". In quiet and reverend tones. But recently theologs are becoming very peculiar. Not long ago they decided that the Reformation was a big mistake. Which was a very unsound decision from the economic point of view of the theologs who decided it.

But the choicest irony of everything is that there is a dance for Graduate Students and a dance for the unemployed being held the same night. Do you appreciate the fine distinction?

THE THEATRES PRESENT

His Majesty's Theatre

JOSE ITURBI has been described as a magnificent artist with a charming personality, as remarkable a musician as he is a virtuoso. The Spanish pianist arrived in this country for the first time in October 1929, sailed for Europe in January 1930, and in a little more than three months had made his name a household word in musical America. Iturbi was born in Valencia in 1895, and studied in the Conservatory of his native city, where he was hailed as a child prodigy. Later, he studied at Barcelona and at the Paris Conservatoire. In 1919, he accepted the post of head of the piano faculty of the Conservatory of Geneva, a post once held by Liszt.

Among the flowery press comment upon this artist is included the following: "He brings to the concert stage every element required in the equipment of an accomplished pianist, and adds to it that of a very great musician." Montreal's second opportunity to hear this outstanding musician will come on Sunday evening at 9:15 at His Majesty's Theatre.

Princess Theatre

COMMENCING Saturday another all British programme will be shown at the Princess theatre, the feature picture being "After the Ball," featuring Estner Ralston and Basil Rathbone, and Arthur Wontner will be seen as Sherlock Holmes in "The Missing Rembrandt." "After the Ball" is a sparkling example of the superiority of British humour. It bubbles with fun, scintillates with wit, it treats sophisticated comedy with a light and wholly delightful touch that shakes over acres of thin ice in subtle and elegant fashion. Risque it certainly is, and the theme of the story, is a good humoured "poke" at the league of Nations.

"The Missing Rembrandt," with Arthur Wontner, will be shown as the added attraction. This particular episode in the history of Conan Doyle's famous detective, is an adaptation of "The Adventure of Charles Augustus Milverton," and concerns the theft of a famous art treasure from the Louvre. Sherlock Holmes is called in to make investigations during the course of which he crosses the path of a certain Baron von Guntermann, an international crook, who specializes in purloining valuable pictures.

Capitol Theatre

"TONIGHT IS OURS," based on the play "The Queen was in the Parlor" by Noel Coward, the author of "Cavalcade" once again teams Frederic March and Claudette Colbert, stars of "The Sign of the Cross." It is a prettily mounted romance, replete with gorgeous sets and stunning costumes. The story centers around a girl of position who waives her responsibilities and sets out to have an amusing time in Paris, and a wealthy young Parisian who insists on being the source of the amusement.

"Hello Everybody" presents Kate Smith, the queen of the radio as a big hearted girl who does a man's work running a large farm for her fatherless family. She sacrifices her own desires to give happiness to others, and, when a ruthless power company tries to drive her and hundreds of other farmers out of a beautiful valley so that they may build a dam, she heads the fight to preserve their homes. To raise money for the costly legal fight, she sings on the radio and wins fame.

Palace Theatre

GEORGE ARLISS in his latest production "The King's Vacation" strikes a happy medium between the strongly dramatic roles he has done on the stage and in his earlier silent and talking screen offering. In this latest picture, Arliss portrays a modern king-of an unnamed country — who hates the uniforms, the pomp and ceremony of his court, and longs for the simpler life he once expected to enjoy permanently.

Delightful short subjects include a Clark and McCullough comedy, "Pleasure Island," a tabloid musical comedy entirely in Technicolor and "Screen Souvenirs."

Loew's Theatre

AN EXCEPTIONAL vaudeville and screen programme will be offered at Loew's theatre starting today. The screen attraction is "The Billion Dollar Scandal" with Robert Armstrong, Constance Cummings and Olga Baclanova and the vaudeville is headlined by the famous International Composer Neville Flesson.

"The Billion Dollar Scandal" is the dramatic story of a gigantic swindle. The story follows the adventures of Fingers Partos (Robert Armstrong) whose clever fingers in the art of massage have made him a trusty friend of the warden during a prison term, and carry him right into the inner councils of Masterson, a millionaire banker, and his associates, when the prison term is ended.

The vaudeville programme is headlined by Neville Flesson, the international composer, who presents a musical act of unusual character, combining novelty, originality and dancing. Marty May and Jean Carroll offer the greatest composition of song and dance ever seen or heard. Fritz and Jean Hubert, International Pantomime Artists and realistic Inebriates; Gregory and Raymond "Musical Idiots" and the 4 Danubes complete the bill.

Correspondence

Editor,
McGill Daily:

I wish to correct a somewhat erroneous impression obtained from the advance story of the Labor Club in yesterday's Daily.

Prof. T. W. L. MacDermott is a member of the Players' Club only to the extent of holding an honorary office on the executive of that club.

While he is actively interested in the Club, I am sure he would not wish the wrong impression given by the above mentioned notice to go uncorrected.

Yours truly,

L. DEAN CORNELL.

Model Library To Be Inaugurated By Carnegie Foundation

Books of General Interest To Students Will Be Selected

MAY OPEN IN FALL

Present Reading Room In Arts Building May Be Converted

Following the action of the Carnegie Corporation in recently making a grant of $15,000.00 to McGill, a Model Students' Library will be inaugurated on the campus in the near future. This library will fill a much felt need in undergraduate life as it will be composed entirely of books of general interest.

The Corporation will make three annual grants of $5,000.00 each, and the grant when completed will have provided the students with a library of probably 10,000 books. These books will be among the best that have ever been written on subjects of university study.

No Text Books
The library will not contain any text books periodicals, or books of a highly technical nature. In a word, it will be a library of the best books for student reading.

The books will be of great excellence, and will be on a variety of subjects, such as philosophy, history, and others of a like nature.

The library, it is felt, should be as near as possible to the centre of undergraduate life at the university. With this view in mind, it has been proposed to use what is now the Arts Reading Room, which is room 7, opposite the Dean's office.

Fitted with Chairs
If, as proposed, this room is employed it will be fitted up with comfortable chairs, and furnished in a quiet appropriate way. All necessary furnishings will help to make it a setting for quiet enjoyment.

The first number of books will be probably installed next summer. If so, next fall a librarian will be placed in charge, and the library will be kept open on week-day afternoons and evenings, and probably Saturday afternoon.

woman has been trained to spread her energy over a number of small, although vital tasks, and a profession requires a concentration of energy. Since woman is unable to concentrate, she cannot succeed in her profession. She can at best equal men, but never better his achievement. Woman's proper place is in guiding the young, in manners, conventions, and morals. Furthermore, the speaker added, woman is not able to reason well.

S. Machin, for the affirmative stated that woman has attained and kept her position as a result of economic necessity. She has removed all obstacles to her success, and therefore, has justified her position. Educational institutions supply the raw material for the professions, and the fact that educational institutions accept women students shows that they have attained a certain eminence in the professions.

Justified Position
Elma Perigard stated that to prove that woman had justified her position, it must be proved that she was doing the greatest good to humanity in that position, and concluded that "woman's place is in the home." Women should be educated, not in order to practice, but to transmit, through influence on children their culture. Woman is at her best in the home. It is in the home, and not in the professions that she does greatest good, and therefore, she has not justified her position in the professions. Col. Bovey rendered the decision on behalf of the judges who were Mrs. Wisely Bragg, Rev. George and Col. Bovey.

when as already described it was extremely difficult to identify prisoners. The first scientific endeavour to provide for positive identification was made when measurements were taken of prisoners. This was obviously a very bulky procedure.

Prints Never Wear Out
One of the main advantages of identification by means of fingerprints was stressed as being the fact that the small ridges that protect the sweat glands and form the fingerprints rise from the second layer of skin and thus never wear out.

Medical Society To Hear Dr. Stewart

He has contributed widely to literature and is an excellent teacher. His fondness for students and his interest in their careers has stimulated very much his enthusiasm for the broadest possible lines of medical education, and he is a protagonist of bedside teaching and practical training of medical students.

As a public speaker he is much sought after and his presence at McGill to address the Undergraduate Medical Society is an especial event. Members of the Medico-Chirurgical Society are also cordially invited to attend this meeting.

ample, Sirius B, a dwarf, is the size of the earth, but has half the weight of the sun. In other words, one cubic inch of material would weigh a ton.

To show some of the immensities of space, Dr. Douglas told of the distances of the farthest nebulae. They are so far that it takes light, which has a speed of six trillion miles per year, one million years to come to the earth. Our galaxy alone contains ten million stars, and some of the stars are much larger than the sun. If we were to place the centers of these stars at the center of the sun, then Aldebaran, for example, would extend beyond the orbit of Venus, Betelgeuse beyond the orbit of the earth, and Mira Ceti beyond Mars.

Variable Star Observers and Yerkes observatory.

Reports 115 Meteors
During the Perseid shower of last August he was able to report 2,155 meteors observed in Missouri, Illinois, and Arkansas by himself and others working under him.

In addition to astronomy, Wesley is interested in the study of weather phenomena. But he doesn't expect to be a professional star-gazer when he finishes school. He wants to be a missionary in Africa.

Labor Club Meets
Next Tuesday evening the McGill Labour Club will hear Prof. MacDermott, of the department of history, on "Immediate steps in social reconstruction from the point of view of a left-wing liberal."

Debaters Denounce Party Governments

Arts '35 Hold Elimination Debate in Room 64 Of The Arts Building

"Resolved that democracy has failed" will be the subject of a debate between McGill and Loyola Monday night. Representing McGill are John MacLeish and Philip F. Vineberg, both of Arts '35. These will support the affirmative of the resolution, while Loyola will support the negative. MacLeish is at present President of the McGill Junior Debating League, and Vineberg has been prominent in Junior Debating League circles this year.

A win in this debate for McGill means that she will have the privilege of debating the Knights of Columbus, for the Beatty Cup, emblematic of championship of the Montreal Debating League. McGill has already defeated Loyola and Y.M.H.A. and has been defeated only once, but the Ciceron Club.

Due to the fact that the debate must take place on neutral ground, the meeting will take place at Central Y. M.C.A. It is expected that a large attendance will be in evidence, for there is a traditional rivalry between McGill and Loyola.
